Here and There

Editorial By ALEX. H. WASHBURN

IT IS not enough for business men to merely hold up their hands in protest and say to government: "No new taxes—you must economize." For our system of taxation, like our system of carrying on private business, is constantly changing. You can't "freeze" taxation into a single form and expect it to remain unchangeable any more than you can set up a business along certain lines and expect it to run forever. As a matter of fact, some statisticians have figured it out that the average life of a "successful" business is just about one man's own active life-time, 30 years. By that time he has grown old, forgotten to change with a changing world—and death washes out both the man and the thing that he created.

Hope Loses Title to Texarkana in Final Round Here

Bobcats Carry Tournament Fight to Last Ditch, Losing 37-26

FINANCIALLY GOOD

Guarantee More Than Covered—Local Business Brisk Saturday

Arkansas High School of Texarkana won the district 10 senior boys basketball championship here Saturday night with a 37-26 victory over Hope.

Following the championship round, McNeill defeated the Bobcats for the runner-up position which entitles the Columbia county school to enter the state tournament at Harrison.

Under protest of Principal R. B. Brawner of Texarkana, the Bobcats played for the district title without the services of Hugh Reese, stellar forward.

The protest was based around a transfer rule, since Reese came to Hope from a rural district.

Texarkana took an early lead and maintained it throughout the game. The Bobcats rallied in the third period, but were unable to overcome the sharp-shooting Razorback team.

McWilliams, Texarkana center, was high-point man with 20. Kennedy of Hope was the main threat for the Bibbets, scoring 11 points.

Guard Lee, covered.

Financial results of the district 10 tournament were more than satisfactory for Hope. This city had guaranteed $200, underwritten by local business men through the Young

Gin Weddings Are to Be Outlawed

Montana Passes Law—Georgia May Give Alimony to Men, Too

By the Associated Press

Three phases of the domestic problem—gin weddings, alimony and heart balm—are receiving attention of state legislatures.

Montana, striking at gin weddings, ruled last week that three days must elapse between application for and issuance of a license. The new law, provides also that applicants must be sound of mind and body.

Georgia, seeking to establish men and women on equal footing, would entitle husbands to draw alimony from their wives, if a court orders. A bill with this provision was reported favorably last week by a House committee.

The Ohio house code committee decided against speedy action on a bill designed to outlaw heart balm suits.

Neighbor Is Killed in Argument Over Farm Horse-Race

Close Finish Near Monticello Leads to Fatal Shooting

OPPONENT INJURED

Interested Themselves in Relatives' Amateur Horse-Race

MONTICELLO, Ark.—(AP)—An altercation reported as growing out of the dispute result of a race between two farm horses brought death to one man and serious injuries to another in the Long Prairie community 15 miles south of here late Sunday.

Sheriff W. C. Cruse said Monday he was going to the scene to investigate. Pat Wolfe, 22, was fatally injured by a rifle shot and blows about the head alleged to have been inflicted with an axe.

Jimmy Ferguson, 30, was brought to a hospital here in a grove condition from cuts on the head and body. Sheriff Cruse was told that several persons were involved in a difficulty which followed a close finish between two farm horses owned by relatives of Wolfe and Ferguson.

Greek Government Strikes at Rebels

Civil War Tops List of Troublesome World Events Monday

By the Associated Press

The Greek government Monday ordered out airplanes, troops and warships to suppress a wide-spread rebellion which it claimed is being led by former Premier Venizelos.

In Hungary, Premier Gombos changed the personnel of his cabinet. Italy and Ethiopia are reported to have agreed on a neutral zone along the frontiers of Italy's African colonies.

The Chinese government is reported seeking an international group loan from the United States, Japan, Great Britain and France.

King Pradjitipok said his abdication from the throne of Siam was irrevocable, and it was expected his nephew would be recalled to rule.

Newspapers Reach 87% of Americans

Advertising Survey Reveals Greatest "Coverage" by Daily Press

NEW YORK.—(AP)—An independent consumer survey of 15 cities in the United States shows that more than 87 per cent of the families in these cities regularly read a newspaper, the Bureau of Advertising of the American Newspaper Publishers Association announced Sunday.

The bureau found the figure rises to "well over 90 per cent" in some individual cities, and concluded that an "average" newspaper list "would reach almost 100 per cent of the leading buying power groups."

The figures were based on cities which combined account for $2,000,000,000 annually in retail sales.

Where magazines are considered essential in an advertising program, the bureau said, better coverage can be achieved by limiting to a few the list of magazines, and adding some newspapers.

The survey shows five magazines plus one newspaper per city studied reach almost 50 per cent more families than a list of 17 magazines alone.

THE NEW DEAL IN WASHINGTON

—BY RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON.—The Democratic congressman who gets a nice bright gold star for party regularity on his report card at the end of this session will be qualifying for the rare avis cage at the National Zoo.

Nearly everyone, especially in the senate, belongs to some one of many groups opposed to the president on one issue or another.

If the groups ever got together on a single vote it would be just too bad for the administration. But they won't and probably can't except on the bonus or perhaps partially on a labor issue.

Silk Crisis Threatens Japan

Collapse of U.S. Buying Threatens Oriental Empire

Economic and Military Power Built on Backs of Peasants

CRUSHED BY TAXES

40% of Silk-Growers Near Disaster Since America's 1929 Panic

The real story of "What's Wrong With Japan"—a political conflict between the Nipponese militarists and financiers, with a crisis in Japan's vital silk industry leaving her millions of poor silk farmers "in the middle"—has just been revealed in a thoroughgoing research made by Fortune Magazine. By special arrangement with the publishers of Fortune, NEA Service here presents highlights of the Fortune survey:

(Copyright, 1935, by Time-Fortune Corporation)

Japanese businessmen don't belly-ache. But you don't want to be fooled by this face-saving. Just because a Japanese businessman doesn't howl is no reason to suppose he isn't in pain.

Consider the Japanese raw-silk industry, for instance: You will see about as serious an industrial jam as you can find in the world today. You will see a jam that is desperate not only for Japan's raw-silk industry, but for the whole economy of the empire.

When Japan was opened to world trade—it was only in 1854, remember—one of the very first things her precociously smart businessmen did was to buy the farmer's silk (they had been raising it for their own use since mythological times) and resell it to the world.

The Japanese farmer could live on a few cents a day; he gladly took the smallest, medieval pay for his silk; the businessman was able to get it unbelievably cheap and undersell the world.

Their cheap silk became Japan's biggest business, and with their silk profits they set themselves up in heavy industry, they modernized both Japan and themselves.

America Rich Market

Meanwhile they kept selling silk, and particularly to the rich, luxury-loving U. S. After the World War, the U. S. had such a boom as had never been heard of. The glamorous silk industry became more glamorous than ever—selling four times its previous volume, and selling these enormous quantities almost entirely to the U. S.

The Japanese businessman, who controlled the silk trade, took huge profits.

On these, and on the profits from the other industries that silk had made possible, Japan became virtually drunk with the splendor of big business. Meanwhile the actual raising of the silk remained on the tiny farms. Japan still paid the farmer his meager, medieval wage, and it had almost forgotten that his silk was the foundation of the empire.

Then came 1929

Since 1929 the boomtime U. S. that paid $3 a pound for 88 per cent of

Local Chancery Is Upheld on Appeal

Fraud Charge in Ready vs. Ozan Company Is Not Sustained

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—The Arkansas Supreme Court Monday upheld a judgment of Hempstead county holding that evidence was not sufficient to set aside the sale of a tract of land in 1911 on grounds of fraud in the case of Lex Ready and others against the Ozan Investment company.

Ready attacked the sale on the ground that the price which the company was paid was far below the real value.

Municipal court at Hope was postponed until next Monday because of chancery court.

Priest Bitterly Assails President

Coughlin Declares New Deal Deck Is Marked for Big Business

DETROIT, Mich.—(AP)—The Rev. Charles E. Coughlin reviewed the first two years of President Roosevelt's New Deal Sunday, and declared that every card in the New Deal deck was marked in favor of "big business" and "big finance."

"Big ownership and private financialism are still with us untouched, unhampered and unafraid," said the priest. "No government can hope to establish a new economic deal unless at every moment and at every move the arrangements of big ownership is deflated and the tyranny of private financialism is broken."

"You cannot have a new deal without new deck. Two more years of this policy which is associated with preserving big business and big finance will be remembered in American history as the sad experiment."

"Big business and big finance were practically the only ones who really benefited from the New Deal which for two long, dreary years has failed to realize its promises of driving the money-changers out of the temple and of legalizing against the concentration of wealth," the priest continued.

R. C. Kennedy, all-state high school end, and Luther Spears, fullback, were named co-captains to lead next season's Bobcat football team.

Selection of Kennedy and Spears was made Monday morning at a meeting of lettermen of last season's squad. Kennedy was named on the Arkansas Democrat's first team, and was given honorable mention by the Arkansas Gazette.

Spears is a hard-driving fullback, and is rated by many fans as the greatest defensive back ever produced here. Next season will be the final for both.

Famed California Editor Dead at 78

Fremont Older Chief Executive of San Francisco Call-Bulletin

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif.—(AP)—Fremont Older, 78, editor of the San Francisco Call-Bulletin and champion of the cause of Tom Mooney, convicted Preparedness day parade bomber, collapsed in his automobile and died at Stockton, near here Sunday.

An active figure in American journalism for more than half a century, Older had accompanied his wife and a friend to a flower show in Stockton. While Mrs. Older and the companion went to see the display, Older sat down by his car and began writing.

"I could have finished this article if you had stayed at the show a little longer," he remarked as Mrs. Older and her friend returned to the automobile.

The editor then took the wheel and was driving homeward when stricken. Just outside Stockton he collapsed. He was taken to a hospital where he was pronounced dead. Physicians said a heart attack was the cause.

Born in a log house at Appleton, Wis., August 30, 1856, Mr. Older was the son of Emory and Julia August Older. He received a public school education at Ripon, Wis., but afterwards put in a year at college. Having read the life of Horace Greeley, he became fired with an ambition to

New Oil Test for County Is Assured

F. W. Martin & Co. to Drill Again on Same Block of Acreage

F. W. Martin & Co., Tulsa oil firm, announced here Monday that a second attempt would be made to bring in an oil well in southern Hempstead county.

Exact location of the new test has not been made, but it was announced that it would be in the same acreage block as the first.

The original Martin test was drilled on the A. J. Lafferty land, 10 miles south of Hope, near the Lewisville road. It was abandoned several weeks ago after encountering much trouble.

The test was drilled to 3,670 feet. At that point the derrick caved in. Approximately 1,500 feet of drill stem was lost in the hole.

Two good oil showings were made—enough to justify cost of making a second test in that vicinity, a representative of the oil firm said Monday.

The Martin firm plans to re-block the same area. Several leases in this block have expired, but attempts were being made Monday to obtain renewal.

As soon as this is completed, construction of a derrick will begin and a new well will be made.

Son Weds Woman That Father Shot

Young Coley Marries Wounded Woman After Affray at Gurdon

ARKADELPHIA, Ark.—Presenting a marriage license issued at Prescott, B. L. Coley, of Texarkana, Friday night was married to Mrs. Fay Ryan, of Gurdon, who has not yet fully recovered from serious pistol wounds in the abdomen inflicted, according to the indictment, by the bridegroom's father, Richard Coley, in her rooming house on the night of January 11.

The wedding was performed by Justice of the Peace John F. Hinsley at his home in this city.

The elder Coley, a trainman of the Missouri Pacific, living in Texarkana, is under indictment here on a charge of assault with intent to kill as the result of the shooting at Gurdon, which has alienated father and son.

According to the authorities who investigated the shooting, B. L. Coley, then married to a Texarkana girl, was a caller at Mrs. Ryan's rooming house in Gurdon, and that the young man's father, Richard Coley, came to the home for the purpose of discouraging his son's attentions to Mrs. Ryan, who was a widow. The son resented the intrusion and a personal encounter resulted, during which Mrs. Ryan is alleged to have armed herself and entered the room where the struggle was taking place. The elder Coley claims he shot in self defense. Mrs. Ryan was taken to a Prescott hospital in a critical condition, uttering prayers she might recover.

The youth went with her, while his father surrendered and was brought to Arkadelphia and placed in jail. The son remained at Prescott where he accompanied the wounded woman. Later he was arrested and placed in jail here. The elder Coley made bond and was released and offered to make bond for his son, but the boy refused. However, he was released within a few days.

When court convened the father was indicted, but the case was continued when the woman was still physically unable to appear as a witness.

Thorn Appeals to House for Action; Only 10 Days Left

May Attempt to Pass Dillon Measure Through Lower Chamber

$6,000 TAX A DAY

Meanwhile, State Does Nothing to Match U. S. Relief Funds

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—The legislature's lower branch—like Caesar—was admonished Monday by Speaker Thorn to beware of the idea of March unless millions of dollars in revenue were raised before sine die adjournment March 14.

He urged the house to take final action on the senate (Dillon) package sale liquor bill.

As the legislature swung into the last 10 days of the regular session Thorn pleaded that each day liquor is not legalized the state loses $6,000 and consequently is failing to meet part of its obligations to the federal government to match funds for relief which stopped Saturday.

The house, however, preferred to stay on other measures during the morning, and Thorn expected to renew his request for action in the afternoon. If not granted, the bill could come up in the regular order Tuesday.

The senate was in recess until 2 p. m. Monday.

The house during the morning adopted amendments to a bill which would remove Chairman J. S. Cargile of the State Highway Commission. One amendment would provide for the redistricting of the highway engineering districts. Changes proposed included: District Three, headquarters at Hope, composed of Clark, Sevier, Nevada, Pike, Little River, Miller, Howard, Hempstead and Lafayette; another district, Columbia, Ouachita, Union and Calhoun.

Futrell and Dyess

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—Governor Futrell and State Relief Administrator W. R. Dyess conferred Monday at the governor's home on the question of suspended federal relief in Arkansas, both declining afterward to make any specific statement on general resumption of federal aid.

Revenue Issue Desperate

LITTLE ROCK.—The quest for new revenue, grown desperate since the FERA withdrew aid first from unemployed, then from school teachers and finally from all relief clients, will be resumed by the Fifty-fifth General Assembly when it convenes Monday, with only 10 more business days left in the biennial 60-day session.

Legislators are hoping that some encouraging word may come out of a conference between Governor Futrell and W. R. Dyess, state relief director, who returned here Sunday after an extended stay in Washington.

At his home Mr. Dyess said that he would be unable to make any statement regarding results of his Washington trip until after he talks with the governor.

Thousands of Arkansas families were affected when Washington authorities did not make a relief allotment for the state March 1. Failure of the legislature to provide $1,500,000 a year for relief was blamed for the FERA action.

Force Liquor Vote

At least part of the needed revenue can be obtained from a tax on liquor sales. Speaker Harvey B. Thorn reiterated Sunday night, in announcing that he proposes to have the senate liquor bill called up for passage in the house Monday.

The speaker's statement was issued after Governor Futrell indicated he might be ready to appear before a joint session of the house and senate Tuesday morning to present a revenue measure which he has drafted to procure $3,000,000 in the next biennium.

He will ask the legislature to pass this bill without delay, but he has announced he will hold it without signature until after adjournment of the assembly, and will permit it to die if another revenue program is agreed upon. Advocates of the retail sales tax sponsored by school interests have been trying to overcome strong opposition in the house during the past few days, and Sunday said they felt progress was being made.

Action Declared Imperative

Speaker Thorn's statement relative to the Dillon liquor bill follows: "Events which have transpired since Saturday cause me to be more strongly convinced than ever that immediate action is necessary in the house on the Dillon liquor bill. I am of the opinion that not another day should be permitted to go by without favorable action by the house on the measure."

"Arkansas cannot afford to lose another dime of the revenues which will start pouring in the moment the liquor bill is signed into law by Governor Futrell. Scores—even hundreds—of

YOUR HEALTH

By DR. MORRIS FISHER
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

Oxygen Found Useful For Many Diseases.

Oxygen once was just an emergency remedy rushed in when patients were at the point of death.

Today it is well established as a useful remedy in many forms of disease, and it is recognized that early use of oxygen may be far more beneficial than any attempt to delay its application in certain types of cases, until an emergency exists.

New oxygen devices include incubators which keep premature infants in a high oxygen atmosphere. For grown-ups there are oxygen tents, oxygen rooms, and special devices for breathing oxygen on a more limited scale.

In use of the oxygen tent, the oxygen in the air is kept down at about a 50 per cent level in contrast with the normal level. About one standard tank of oxygen a day is required.

If an oxygen tent is not available, a temporary emergency type of apparatus can be made, consisting of an anesthetic mask with a rebreathing bag. It is also possible to introduce the oxygen through a tube in the nose. In setting up such system, the oxygen must be passed through water to prevent too much drying of membranes of nose and throat.

Oxygen should be used in all cases in which breathing is difficult and in which the patient suffers from an actual shortage of air. This occurs in all types of asphyxia, such as carbon monoxide poisoning or pneumonia.

The shortage of air which occurs with diseases of the heart is seldom greatly benefited by treatment with oxygen, since this type of shortage is largely due to a slowing of circulation of the blood.

On the other hand, oxygen may help cases of angina pectoris, because in these cases there may be a deficient amount of oxygen in the heart muscle.

Persons whose attacks of angina pectoris are readily controlled by rest or by treatment with the usual drugs do not need oxygen, but those who have frequent and severe attacks of angina, which come on with the slightest amount of physical effort, may find themselves greatly benefited by this treatment.

All that is to be known about the value of oxygen in various forms of disease has not yet begun to be established, but investigations are being carried out in many hospitals and laboratories and increasing use is found in this disturbance.

Since there is danger of fire and of violent explosion of oxygen under wet conditions, it is never to be used except under direction of an experienced attendant.

A BOOK A DAY

By BRUCE CATTON

Sea's Romance Just Bunk, Says Van Loon—'Ships' Tells How Sailors of All Ages Were Abused

The joyous romance of life on the bounding main is just so much distilled hokum, according to Hendrik Willem Van Loon.

This noted author has written a book called "Ships," in which he reviews the entire history of man's travel by water, and he announces bluntly that the story of the sea is simply a long story of human martyrdom.

From earliest times, he says, sailors have been overworked, underfed, lodged in squalid quarters, and subjected to ferocious discipline. Only within the present generation has there been any substantial betterment of their lot.

From the day of the galley slaves—who were chained to their benches, and invariably went down with their ship—to the rise of steam, the sailor led perhaps the least enviable of existence.

Things are getting better, now, he reports; sailors are actually given food which is not decaying and maggoty, and have living quarters somewhat better than those in the more squalid county jails.

But Mr. Van Loon points out that

Nose-Dive Taken by British Pound

England Cheapens Currency as Her Recovery Movement Falters

NEW YORK.—(P)—An abrupt decline in the pound sterling has revived discussions in Wall Street of a contest between British and American monetary authorities.

The British pound Friday reached the lowest levels on record in terms of present day European gold currencies, and the lowest in relation to the American dollar in two years. Wall Street experts expressed belief the American Treasury's stabilization fund had been caught off guard. Continued declines in the pound, it was said, might have a deflationary effect upon American price levels.

The pound dropped 2 3/8 cents in New York to $4.81 1/2, which brought it down more than eight cents in the past fortnight, and more than 12 cents in two months. The decline in terms of European gold currencies has also been striking.

Wall Street believes Great Britain will let the pound slide a little and wait to see what Secretary Morgenthau will do. If no action is taken by the United States Treasury, the guess is that sterling will be allowed to slide a little more.

The net result of continued weakness in the British currency, some declare, will be period of uncertainty in international financial circles until the American and English money arrive at equilibrium.

Bankers are agreed there have been signs that British recovery was beginning to lose pep. Then came collapse of the commodity pools: pepper, peanuts, shellac and tin went down. Leading English bankers were thought to have been involved. It was the resultant world-wide publicity, bankers here stress, which threw doubts out about the advisability of leaving funds in London.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

By Alicia Hart

Face Brush Gives Skin That Healthy Blush.

Say what you will, the complexion brush is one of the best beauty aids a woman with sallow or slightly grayish skin can have in her bathroom. Far more sanitary than an infrequently laundered wash cloth, one of these gadgets not only will thoroughly cleanse the skin, but, by stimulating circulation, tend to clarify it.

Select a complexion brush that is easy to grasp in the hand and one with bristles that are soft, yet firm. It should be dipped in warm water and thick soapuds and, with upward, outward and rotary motions, rub all over face and neck. Do not scrub too vigorously and do not use the brush for rinsing.

Of course, if your skin is particularly sensitive, better not use a complexion brush or a wash cloth. Instead, make a lather on your hands and then massage face and neck with your palms. Always rinse carefully. Only skin should use cleansing cream before the soap and water treatment. Dry and normal ones ought to clean with soap and water first, applying cream afterward.

Choose a soap that contains no free alkali. You can get inexpensive complexion soaps that are made from the finest ingredients, so don't you think you have to pay a lot for a good one. If you can't decide what is best, ask your doctor or a druggist to recommend a brand.

SILKEN SPINDLES

by Laura Lu Brookman © 1935 NEA SERVICE, INC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

GALE HENDERSON, pretty and 23, works in a silk mill. She and her 10-year-old brother, Phil, support their invalid father.

STEVE MEYERS, who also works in the mill, asks Gale to marry him. She delays giving her answer.

Gale goes skating, breaks through the ice and is rescued by BRIAN WESTMORE, whose father, now dead, built the mill. Brian has come home after two years in Paris, ready to take his place in the mill.

VICKY THATCHER, daughter of ROBERT THATCHER, general manager of the mill, schemes to captivate Brian. She sees him while he is visiting father.

Trying to meet Gale, she tells her that she (Vicky) and Brian are engaged to be married. Gale, believing Brian has been abusing himself at her expense, is deeply hurt. She refuses to see him again.

Brian, trying to forget Gale, turns to Vicky. Phil loses his job. The mill workers are organizing secretly and Gale joins. She goes to the drug store on an errand and encounters her father.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

BRIAN said, "Hi!" and cleared his throat. Gale turned and looked out the window. There was nothing but the empty street and the rain, falling in slanting lines. There was another drug store two blocks down the street. She could go there.

She whirled as Brian went on speaking. "I haven't seen you for a long time," he said, looking at her in that strange way she had noticed a moment before.

"No."

It had been a long time. Two weeks and four days, exactly, her heart cried, since the night she had met Brian on the way home from work—the night that had been the end of everything. Two weeks and four days. That wasn't counting the time she'd seen him in Vicky Thatcher's green roadster. That was only last Thursday.

Brian seemed determined to make conversation. He asked "Everything going along all right?"

"Oh, yes. Yes. Fine."

Why didn't Mr. Schonebaum come, the girl thought wildly. Why didn't he come?

As though in direct answer, she saw a shiny bald head through the window. Mr. Schonebaum, red of face and puffing slightly, pushed the door of the drug store open.

"I just been upstairs for a few minutes," he explained apologetically. "We got a place in the roof that leaks. I got to see—but what can I do for you?"

The question came, as it always did. Mr. Schonebaum invariably greeted customers with, "What can I do for you?"

He was standing behind the counter, drying the raindrops from his spectacles. Gale looked at Brian and said, "You were here first."

"Go ahead."

He stood back, waiting for her to make her purchase. Gale said to the druggist, "I'd like to have this prescription filled," and handed him the bottle.

"Yah. Just a few moments—"

Collapse of U. S.

Japan's raw silk has become the penny-and-credit-punching U. S. that wenders how it ever got that way. It still takes 90 per cent of the silk exports—this is important to remember—but it takes it cheap or not at all.

So between 1929 and July, 1934, the silk price plunged from $5 to $1.50. Since then it has crept up to about $1.50. But the Japanese silkmen are still wondering whether they can possibly have reached the bottom. And you can't make money on raw silk at $1.50 a pound.

Having used the silk farmers as the lowest steppingstone to its industrial greatness, Japan also taxed them heavily, while going light on industrial taxation. And today Japan's militaristic government taxes them still more in order to keep swelling Japan's prestige with newer and more deadly war machinery and an aggressive policy on the continent of Asia.

So the farmer's taxes are almost inevitably—and dangerously—in arrears, and there is a hard symbol of the fact: he sells his daughters to work in the empire's cotton mills. And very often he sells his daughters into prostitution.

And when you have seen all this, there is still worse—the second of the most unglorious facts of the silk industry.

Rayon Changes Scene.

In these same boom days when silk had its fanciest successes, rayon—artificial silk squirted out of cold mechanical nozzles—was getting up great momentum.

So far the Japanese businessmen, the Mitsui and Mitsubishi and the several other great commercial houses, have played their usual canny roles. They have coolly diagnosed the trend and have gone into the rayon business themselves.

As a matter of fact, rayon got its Japanese start in the early twenties but in three short years, working at their usual miraculous tempo, they have built Japan into the second largest rayon producer in the world (following the U. S.), and the nozzles of Japan squirt their fibers all over the Orient.

But no intelligent Japanese can calmly accept the misfortune of the 18,000,000 farmers who tend the worms, who comprise 20 per cent of Japan's population.

Millions Feel Blight

Today silk is produced on 2,200,000 of Japan's 3,500,000 farms. It is thus the chief of Japan's agricultural population, or of 18,000,000 people. Silk is sometimes the farmer's only cash crop and the only other cash crop he is likely to have is a small output of rice.

Silk is also the livelihood of some 2000 flatures (reeling establishments), big and small, employing about 450,000 Japanese. Silk also is the livelihood of several thousand middlemen and technicians of various sorts.

The big Japanese financiers, the Mitsui and Mitsubishi and the rest, have not been idle. They are mobile men and will remain static for long. While they defend the silkworm on the one hand, they fight the revolution of the nozzle on the other. And fight it sensationally.

Farm Problem Acute.

Between 1931 and 1934 Japan's synthetic production leaped 188 per cent, from 18,600,000 pounds to 140,000,000—or 80 per cent of the U. S. production. Japan's synthetic silk has become her third largest export. Last year the export value of Japanese rayon was $29,000,000 as against $86,000,000 for raw silk and $81,000,000 for cotton cloth.

The profit margin isn't nearly so great as the old silk profits: Japan has to import her rayon raw materials. But the business is still accelerating.

Meanwhile the raw-silk industry languishes. And its millions of workers have no such "out" as the financiers.

What is Japan to do about silk? What is she to do, right now? The big silk interests, while they are running at a serious loss, are obviously rich enough to stand the gaff for a while if they have to. But just how badly off is the farmer we've accused them of exploiting?

The fact remains that the Japanese farmer is not only up against these natural elements that he is so remarkably equipped to withstand. He happens also to be up against his taxes. A typical two-and-a-half-acre farmer with a small mulberry orchard under cultivation would have been lucky to get $5 for his cocoons last year. And the average farmer today owes back taxes and private debts amounting to $500.

The farmer's plight is not only distressing to him and bad for the empire's general psychology; it is also of immediate fiscal consequence to the state.

In the last four years Japan has learned with great thoroughness how much she depends on her share of the mutual trade relationship between Japan and the U. S. (she sells us raw silk of about 35 per cent less value than the raw cotton we sell her). Japan would not care to do anything that might harm this selling but vitally important customer.

When you consider the government of Japan, its inability to solve the silk problem isn't hard to understand. You must remember the hatred of the dominant military element in the Diet for the commercial element.

But the dominance of the military, with their reckless, expensive budgets, does not alter the fact that the Diet is still amendable to Mitsui and Mitsubishi influence. In the perpetual tug of war the military tug the loss, but the rope often responds to the quiet insistence of the businessmen.

More government control might help the silk industry. There is an interesting parallel to this history in our own attempts to look after our own farmers by tinkering with price and production of wheat.

But people have to go on eating and there is no artificial wheat industry to undermine our agrarian problems.

When the late Admiral Robert E. Cozart saw the sea for the first time upon arriving at Norfolk, Va., as youthful midshipman, he climbed high into the rigging for a good view.

Sequences

How strange it that heart of man observes
The thunderstorm, the lightning, and the rain,
Rejoicing that these clear the air again;
That winter snow the iole preserves;
That night the energy of day conspires;
Yet has no wisdom for his own soul's pain
And hours of darkness, nor can see the gain
In waiting for the gifts that life reserves.
The sweetest-flowered sentiments of
Like fragrant blossoms after storm and snow;
The darkest night is short to those who know
The sequences of God's refulgent plan,
And—glimpsing it—what folly then to fret!
Through light and shadow, God does not forget.—Selected.

Miss Resque Walker of Texarkana was the week end guest of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard O'Dwyer.

The following article from the Atlanta Journal, Atlanta, Ga., will be of interest to the many friends in Hope of the Rev. Stuart R. Oglesby, who on February 10, began his sixth year as a leader in Atlanta's religious, social and civic life and on that date, a special anniversary program was prepared for the occasion by the congregation of the Central Presbyterian church in Atlanta. The Journal had the following article in addition to the announcement of the program: "A gold watch and chain were presented Dr. Stuart R. Oglesby, pastor of the Central Presbyterian church, Wednesday night, at the mid-week service at the church, the meeting developed into a surprise party for the beloved minister who recently celebrated his fifth anniversary as pastor of the organization. The presents were gifts of the congregation. In presenting the gifts, the chairman of the board of deacons, lauded the services of Dr. J. B. Green of Columbia Seminary during his five-year pastorate. Dr. J. B. Green of Columbia Seminary was the principal speaker. The faculty and student body of the Seminary were guests, and over 250 persons were present." Dr. Oglesby is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Oglesby, pioneer citizen of Hope and ranks high on the list of Hope boys who have made good.

can fuse with the "center" easier than each other. "Prevailing wage" advocates in the work relief fight would rather vote for Roosevelt's $50 a month subsistence wage than a smaller cash dole and the cash doles prefer the Roosevelt plan to anything more liberal.

"Stir" on Capital
NRA codes classify Washington as a southern city of less than 500,000 population and the local central labor union is sore on both counts. It demands classification of the capital as a northern city of 500,000 population on account of the suburbs and the New Deal influx—which would mean higher code wages. . . . Chief Justice Hughes put on his top hat after a big day's work and went to see "The Goodoliers," Gilbert and Sullivan. Our thanks to Postmaster General Jim Farley, who has a substitute for the expression "off the record," which a correspondent hears in every other office in Washington. Farley says: "Dead in this room." . . . The Canadian legion has been going in for "brain trusters" ever since Premier Bennett decided to ballyhoo a "New Deal" for Canada. ## Arkansas Ties for Basketball Title

Finishes in Deadlock With Southern Methodist and Rice

DALLAS, Texas.—(AP)—The first championship tie in Southwest Conference basketball history occurred Saturday night when Southern Methodist, Arkansas and Rice concluded their schedules each with nine wins and three defeats.

For the tie, Southern Methodist beat Texas Christian, 41 to 24, Arkansas trounced Texas A. & M., 51 to 37, and Rice stomped Baylor, 36 to 26.

It is doubtful if there will be a play-off. One more game remains on the conference schedule, a combat Wednesday night between Texas A. & M. and Texas at Austin but it will have no bearing on the championship. The conference doesn't require a play-off, but if Southern Methodist, Rice and Arkansas could agree on dates and sites it would meet with approval of President E. W. McDiarmid of Fort Worth, who said if the three schools were interested he would aid in planning a play-off.

U. S. Cuts Down on Rate of Interest

Bond Return Slashed to 2 1/2% to Encourage Private Investment

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—The Treasury Sunday night followed the administration's desire for lower interest rates by announcing two refunding issues of securities at the lowest yield since long before the World War.

A motive behind the refinancing, informed quarters said, was—in addition to saving the government money—to hold the plan to drive investments into commercial channels through a steady lowering of federal rates. President Roosevelt has said that he felt interest charges in general were too high.

The rate of interest in the note issue, 2 1/2 per cent, is the lowest ever attempted on five-year paper, while the bond rate is the lowest in the memory of the Treasury's oldest employees with the exception of some special bonds bearing the note circulation privilege, and a few postal savings bonds.

Holders of the called securities are not required to take advantage of the exchange offerings. It was made clear they may demand and receive cash.

Some observers thought the low rate on the securities might be an indirect answer to assertions that the mounting public debt threatened government credit.

The bonds will be exempt, both as to principal and interest, from all taxes, except estate or inheritance taxes, surtaxes, excess profits and war applications for permits are awaiting favorable action by the legislature on one or the other of the bills now pending in the respective houses.

Liquor Revenue

"I have been reliably informed that Governor Futrell will accept an invitation extended to him Saturday by the house in a resolution by Representative Caraway of Dallas, which will mean suggesting to us other means of raising the badly needed revenues which must be provided at once. It is utterly impossible for me to conceive of any opposition in the house to action which would enable us to say to Governor Futrell Tuesday that we have already passed one revenue producing bill which will go a long way towards solving our state's distressing problems.

"There is apparently no substantial reason for anyone to believe liquor will not be legalized in this session. Therefore, I believe I am expressing the opinion and the sincere hope more than the needed majority of the house when I say that when the Dillon bill is called up in the house, it will be given a greater vote than given the bill which we originally passed in our branch, the one which bears my own name.

"I will be personally ashamed, and so will many other members of the house, if we have to face our chief executive Tuesday with the admission we have done nothing in the 49 days we have been in session to provide the revenues which this legislature must provide before we can go back to our homes.

"It is up to us to take immediate action, and if the house will go with me Monday, new revenues from a hitherto untouched source will be pouring in to help our unfortunates and our unemployed before another 48 hours will have passed. I have enough confidence in the integrity and the sincerity of purpose of my fellow members to believe it will be done."

Campbell Fails to Break His Record

Rough Beach Prevents Him From Going More Than 270 M.P.H.

DAYTONA Beach, Fla.—(AP)—Sir Malcolm Campbell went thundering up to the edge of his 272-mile-an-hour record Sunday but the beach was too rough for him.

He had to haul the giant Bluebird off the sands after one breathless dash in which he hit 270.473 miles an hour through the measured mile and half the time was riding almost out of the seven-ton monster, so rough was the course.

He hit one bump, just before he came flying into the measured mile and his goggles slid down over his nose and mouth, almost shutting off his breath. The car bounced so his head most of the time was above the windshield. He said the terrific pressure nearly took the top of his skull off.

He did not attempt to come north in the second run, as the rules demand for a new record. Cutting a mere .17 of a second from the 12.31 seconds he took to travel the measured mile south would have given him a new mark a shade above the 272.108 miles an hour he set here two years ago.

It was his second straight day of perilous experiences. Saturday the cowling tore loose on both runs as he hit a high of 295, pouring carbon monoxide fumes into the cockpit, nearly suffocating him.

"It's simply impossible," Campbell said today, "to run for a new record with the beach as rough at it is. You can drive this beach in an ordinary car with one hand at 100 miles an hour. But Bluebird, and 275 or 300,

WATCH KIDNEYS SAME AS BOWELS

Wash Out Your 79,200 Feet of Kidney Tubes!

Your bowels contain only 27 feet of intestines, yet the kidneys contain nearly 10 million tiny tubes or filters which would measure 79,200 feet if laid end to end. Therefore, it is just as important to watch the kidneys as the bowels. Kidneys are working all the time and are one of Nature's chief ways of taking the acids and poisonous waste out of the blood.

Healthy persons pass thru the bladder 3 pints a day and get rid of more than 3 pounds of waste matter. If you pass less than this, your 79,200 feet of kidney tubes may be clogged with poisonous waste. This is a danger signal and may be the beginning of nagging backache, dog pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swollen feet and ankles, rheumatic pains and dizziness. Kidneys should be watched closely and need cleaning out the same as bowels. Ask your druggist for DOAN'S PILLS, an old prescription, which has been used by millions of kidney sufferers for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help to wash out your 79,200 feet of kidney tubes. Get Doan's Pills at your druggist. ©1934, Foster-Milburn Co.

ANNUAL SCHOOL ELECTION

March 16, 1935

Notice is hereby given that the Annual School Election will be held Saturday March 16, 1935, between the hours 2 o'clock and 6:30 o'clock in the afternoon. This election will be held at voting places designated and used as such for the past three years.

At this election school directors are to be elected, the rate of taxes for the support of the public schools fixed, and other questions authorized by the Laws of the State of Arkansas may be considered and voted on.

The following school districts having less than 150 scholastic population as shown by enumeration of 1933 will (unless there is now a vacancy on board of directors) elect one school director for a term of three years:

Rocky Mount No. 4, Providence 14, Oak Grove 20-A, Iron Springs 22, Nolan 29, Sumner Island 33, Liberty Hill 37, Holly Grove 49, Evening Shade 50, Walnut Grove 51, Shiloh 55, Oakland 56, Harmony 57, Oak Grove 61, Centerville 67, Chestnut Hill 70, Walker 71, Navarene 77, Wesley Grove 78, Temple 81, Bradley 82.

In the following districts two directors shall be elected—one for one year, and one for two years:

Yachtville 1-B, Blevins 2, Columbus 3, Fulton 5, DeAnn 7, Ozan 8, Putnos 9, Spring Hill 10, Saratoga 11, Washington 12, Piney Grove 17, Clow 18-A, Red Land 18-B, Guernsey 20-B, Stephenson 44, Fair Star 62.

There shall be elected two directors for Hope School District, each for a term of three years.

The name of an elector may be placed on the ballot on petition signed by at least 20 qualified electors. Such petitions must be filed at least 20 days before the election, Saturday, February 23d being the last day for filing these petitions.

This notice is given by authority of Act No. 30 of the General Assembly of Arkansas for the year 1933.

Further information will be given on request.
